LETTORATO

In parallel with the core English Language and Literature curriculum, the native-speaking teacher developed activities aimed at strengthening communication skills, vocabulary expansion, and critical thinking.

Activities:

The lessons covered the following thematic areas:

- Pros and Cons of AI: the class watched a video regarding the pros and cons of artificial intelligence and was subsequently invited to discuss it in class. Additionally, a "Human Barometer" activity was introduced, aimed at strengthening critical thinking and enhancing debate skills. During this activity, students were presented with controversial statements about AI and were asked to choose whether they agreed, disagreed, or remained neutral before debating the different points of view;
- Dystopian Worlds: the concept of a dystopian world was introduced. The class then worked on group projects related to this topic, analyzing the plot, characters, and social implications of various dystopian movies, series, and video games;

- Greenwashing: the concept of greenwashing was introduced through a TED Talk on the subject, and the class was then invited to discuss and reflect on their own purchasing habits;
- Advertising: the class attended a short marketing lesson on core advertising techniques and subsequently prepared individual presentations analyzing an advertising campaign aimed at raising awareness about climate change or other environmental issues;
- Save the Earth: lessons focused on vocabulary related to environmental issues, with a specific focus on Unit 6 of the textbook Performer B2. The class completed various sections of the unit, including Framing Vocabulary, Use of English, and Reading Comprehension.
